W. SCOTT WAX, Editor & Proprietor.
$2.00 A YEAR, IN ADVANCE.
FRIDAY AFTERNOON, MAY 13, 1881.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.—Communications on topics of local interest are always welcome, but to insure insertion they must be brief and to the point. We do not hold ourselves responsible for the views of correspondents. Anonymous articles will receive no attention. Address all communications to the Proprietor.

PENNSYLVANIA legislators crowd like roosters when votes are announced in the House.

THE MILITARY DIVISION of the Gulf has been abolished, and General Schofield placed on waiting orders.

THE DUKE OF SUTHERLAND sampled Boston baked beans on Saturday and pronounced them good.

ACCORDING to the Philadelphia Times, Conkling is a mighty easy man to get along with—if you let him have his own way.

THE COLORADO BUGS have eaten all the potato vines in Norfolk county, Virginia, and are patiently waiting for more to come up.

THE ANNUAL MEETING of the Society of Friends for Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland opened in Philadelphia on Saturday.

THE QUARREL in the Republican camp is nothing less than the old test between the Grantites and the Anti-Grantites, broke out in a fresh place.

AT THE close of business yesterday there had been received and counted in the Treasury Department $148,081,950 of six per cent. bonds for continuance at 34 per cent.

IN THE State Senate of Pennsylvania, on Tuesday, a resolution was adopted looking to the transfer of the remains of William Penn from England to Philadelphia, and the House concurred in the same.

A STATUE of Stonewall Jackson, which surmounts the tomb of the Association of the Army of Northern Virginia, at New Orleans, was unveiled on Tuesday, in the presence of a great number of people.

TEXAS, after a season of quiet, is getting lively again, and reporting six to eight murders a week in busy sections. Emigrants with money enough to buy a burial lot can always find good openings down there.

THE GENTLE SAVAGE of the far West is getting ready for the usual summer campaign, when he will cut loose from the half-headed Indian agents and Government pork, and strike for fresh beef, liberty and early-settlers' scalps.

CEDAR MILLS, down in Texas, is a quiet little place, but exceedingly unhealthy. Eight murders have been committed there within the past year, and some of the citizens are becoming alarmed at the prospect of the epidemic becoming more general.

THE LAST Republican National Convention required the National Committee to prescribe and announce rules for electing delegates to the National Convention in 1884, and Chairman Jewell has issued a circular inviting expressions of opinion on this subject from Republicans throughout the country.

FORTY MORMON MISSIONARIES left New York the other day for Europe, and Mormon immigrants continue to arrive in this country in great numbers. It must be plain to all that if this Mormon business is to be broken up, something more summary than an occasional "crushing" in a President's message is necessary to do it.

AT THE Republican Senatorial caucus, on Monday, Conkling made a two-hours' speech against confirming Judge Robertson to be Collector at New York. In the course of his remarks he spoke of Robertson as a foe to the Republican party, and alleged that the President had made him (Conkling), certain pledges which he had violated at the first opportunity.

MR. GRIER, of Pennsylvania, the "original Garfield man," having respectfully declined the office of Third Assistant Post Master General, because he wanted something better, the President withdrew his name on Tuesday. He ought to be left out in the cold now to meditate until he reaches the conclusion that a little apple is mighty good—when one can't get a big one.

THE DEAD-LOCK in the Republican party continues. Though the weather is warm the President's back-ache continues firm, and at present, there are no premonitory symptoms of a back-down, on his part, at least. In Washington, yesterday, there were rumors in circulation that a compromise had been effected between the President and Mr. Conkling, but they were rumors only. The administration, apparently, is as firm as the Obelisk, and just what Conkling is going to do about it remains to be seen.

THE JUDICIARY COMMITTEE of the U. S. Senate on Monday reported adversely on the nomination of Stanley Matthews to be Associate Justice of the Supreme Court. It is understood that the vote in committee on the nomination stood: For confirmation—Lamar, of Mississippi; Against confirmation—Edmunds, of Vermont; Logan, of Illinois; Ingalls, of Kansas; McMillan, of Minnesota; Davis, of Illinois, and Bayard, of Delaware. Absent—Conkling, of New York, and Garland, of Arkansas. The nomination was confirmed in the Senate on Thursday, after a long and excited discussion, and by a majority of only one.

DON'T BE AN EDITOR.

"I am thinking about becoming an editor, but I have not fully made up my mind. I am not sure I would like the business. I don't know anything about it, which makes it hard for me to make up my mind whether I would like it or not. Can you advise me what to do, and have you an opening on your paper?" Thus wrote an ambitious young man to an editor, and the editor replied thusly: My son, before you fully decide to become an editor pause and give the subject the fullest possible consideration. As you see the main form of the journalist going into a circus on a complimentary ticket, given him for $2.50 worth of local reading notice, you may, without looking at the matter in all its varied aspects, think his lot an unusually happy one, but just wait awhile and look over the dark side of the fence. All that glitters is not gold-plated, by sixty per cent. Some things that shine on one side are as dark on the other as a request to a postmaster to resign. Don't think because the editor blacked his shoes day-before-yesterday, and today, has on a fresh collar just from the washerwoman, and with brand new sea teeth ironed on the edge, that he is rolling in wealth. He may smile (if you insist on it) and yet his heart may be heavy. His pocket book may contain nothing but an order from an advertiser for three dozen boxes of liver pills, and as an article of steady diet liver pills may be out of season. We freely acknowledge, my son, that the editorial chair has its allurements, and once you get well seated in it, it is almost as hard to shake off as a man who has an old bill against you, but there are other walks of life that are far less laborious and much more remunerative. For instance, you might start out as a tanner, like Jay Gould, and become a great monopolist. There is no business that pays better than that of a monopolist. The next best thing to being a monopolist, perhaps, is being the son-in-law of a monopolist, and in this great and glorious country of ours, you know, a young man can marry any woman he pleases: "The only difficulty being," as John Phoenix used to say, "to find one he can please."

Again, you might engage as a mule driver on a tow-path and become President of our country, a position with a fair salary and no dorking when you're off duty; or you can drive an ox team across the plains, jump a gold mine and buy a seat in the U. S. Senate. The time is past when you could have secured a Star route contract under Second Assistant P. M. G. Brady, but you can still marry a rich widow, with a farm, and become an agriculturist. In this great and glorious country of ours there are any number of openings for a young man of enterprise, without his embarking as a journalist and writing ten hours a day for glory and a complimentary ticket to an amateur minstrel show. Be careful, my son. You don't know anything about an editor's trials. You never saw him writing a leader on the "situation," while three printers were yelling for "copy," and a book agent waiting to trade him "Baxter's Saints' Rest" for a column reading notice. You never saw a seven foot man with a bull dog and a club call on him for a retraction, and get it in less than two minutes by the town clock. You never saw a female canvasser corner him up and hold him spell bound, with her tongue, until he promised to publish a fifty-line notice free gratis, and you never observed him trying to get every patent medicine advertisement in his paper at the top of a column and next to reading matter. You would doubtless think this was all fun, after you got used to it, but it might take you a long, long time to get used to it. There are other "worms," incident to the life of a journalist, that you, in your inexperienced innocence, have perhaps never thought of. "They come not singly, but in battalions." Why a horse never burns down or a horse never runs away and kills a light-nig-roed agent until the day after publication day some detested contemporary has written up and published the thing in two columns of leaded type. Then the public has lost faith in the editors. Once their utterances were set down as the cast-iron truth, but articles about eggs with other eggs inside of them; children exercising a motherly care over a nest of snakes and ministering to their wants with a cup of milk and a spoon, and of cats hatching out and rearing broods of chickens, have brought them, (not the cats, we mean, but the editors), into doubtful repute. Then some of them have gone to the Legislature and gotten into bad company, had their morals all undermined until they won't go to church more than half a dozen times a year, and when they do go they forget the text before they get home and try to palm off some other text on an unsuspecting public. My son, we cannot advise you to be an editor, and yet, after all is said, there is a bright side to it—a side that glitters like the bottom of a new milk pail, but it is not as big a side as the other side. Do you see that hand-gone bougie table, and into which ever and anon the editor sticks four inches of his Roman nose and sniffs the sweet incense, and smiles with a loving tenderness that drives the crow-feet from the corners of his eyes, round under his ears, to the back of his neck? Well, those flowers were culled by fair hands. If the editor is single you will read his acknowledgments in his next paper; but if he is married you probably will not. That's all.

THE STOCK DOCTOR.—Daniel J. Watts, of St. George's, is canvassing this and adjoining hundreds for the Illustrated Stock Doctor and Live Stock Encyclopedia, by J. S. Manning M. D., V. S., a very valuable book for farmers and stock owners. The author is well-known authority on all matters pertaining to live stock. The book contains 1000 pages and about 400 illustrations, showing every form of disease, so that the owner can instantly detect the nature of any complaint which the animal may be afflicted. The book is meeting with universal favor among the farmers of this section.

To cough and at the same time be entertaining is impossible. Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup will reach your case. Price 25 cents a bottle.

THE KEY TO HEALTH.—Have you found the key to perfect health and strength? It is Kidney-Wort, the only remedy that overcomes at once the function of the kidneys and bowels. It purifies the blood by cleansing the system of foul humors, and by giving strength to the liver, kidneys and bowels to perform their regular functions.

—The question of the day: "Is it hot enough for you?"
—It will soon be time to stamp your town dog for 1931.
—You needn't be afraid to bring out your straw hat now.

—The present outlook is good for all kinds of fruit, save peaches.

—A. Mosquitoes arrived with his family and presented his bill.

—The spring run of book agents has been much above the average, this season.

—Business men who planted spring advertisements early are reaping good harvest.

—Middletown manufacturers much more keen than any other town on the Peninsula.

—The depot has presented an unusually lively scene about train time since the opening of coal.

—Messrs. Town Commissioners are we to have the streets sprinkled this season? If so, please proceed.

—The merchants here had a big trade on Saturday, and are selling goods about as fast as they can unpack them.

—Prof. North's vocal class is receiving careful instruction and its members, we learn, are improving rapidly.

—Regular meeting of the Mutual Loan Association, Tuesday evening. A large amount of money will be offered for sale.

—Wool buyers have commenced operations. We learn that the opening price for a good article is from eighteen to twenty cents.

—It is the opinion of the TRANSCRIPT that the large sign of Messrs. Cox & Bro., would look much better in their factory than in its present position.

—A statement of the condition of the Citizens' National Bank of Middletown, published this week, shows that the bank is in a very satisfactory condition.

—At the last meeting of Irving Lyceum Miss S. L. Downs, assisted by Mr. Wright, were elected members of the Executive Committee for the term of two months.

—Fast driving on Main street, particularly on Sunday, has become a nuisance, and ought to be suppressed before it runs out of control.

—There are still a few pages of advertising space open in the TRANSCRIPT.

—A young man, a former resident of Middletown, now engaged in farming, near Warwick, is planting corn in this kind of weather is not so easy as gathering arbutus.

—The agricultural implement men are just as busy as bees, and now appear that almost every farmer in this section will have a self-binding harrow before grain is in hand.

—Joe E. Stiles, formerly of Middletown, is now with the Philadelphia commission firm of Struthers & Wood, 338 N. 2nd street, Philadelphia.

—Dr. G. G. Chamberlain, of this town, has been re-appointed a member of the State Board of Health, for four years. His associates are Dr. Wm. Marshall, of Milford, and Dr. Fowler, of Land.

—Two long whistles and two short ones, in rapid succession, is the signal for a racing, recently adopted on the Delaware Railroad. Formerly the signal was one long whistle, but sometimes it was omitted.

—Makens has done some very pretty grafting on the front of his home. He makes a knot as natural as life. By the way, hasn't it often struck you as a little singular that men will take extreme care to get a door entirely free of knots, and then pay a man five dollars a day to plant artificial knots on it?

—The Pennsylvania Railroad Company's system of announcing the names of stopping places when leaving the previous station, and of announcing the names of the steam whistles at crossings, recently adopted on the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore, and Delaware Railroad, is universally voted a good thing.

—A hook, supporting a chandelier, containing two lanterns in Biddle's home, gave way, on Monday night, and the whole came down with a crash upon a table. Both lamps were broken, and the chandelier was seriously damaged. The cause was owing to the presence of mind of Mrs. Rice, in promptly extinguishing the burning wicks, a fire was prevented.

—Summer weather bounced upon us all at once, according to Mr. Vennor's programme. The week opened hot, and continued to grow more so. The record of the thermometer at Tatman's Corner, at 10 o'clock, P. M., is as follows: Monday, 89; Tuesday, 87; Wednesday, 91; Thursday, 95; Friday, 92. That will do for May.

Irving Lyceum.

The meeting on Monday evening was well attended and the exercises were as pleasant and entertaining as usual. The names of three applicants for membership were received, and upon acceptance. Owing to the unavoidable absence of several members who had been assigned parts in the programme of the evening, a few changes were made. The literary exercises consisted of a beautiful selection, entitled "Words," read by Miss Lilla B. Roberts; a humorous reading, entitled "A School-Master's Experience," by Miss Jennie Leber; the popular offering of Bob Burdette, "The Breakdown," read by Mr. Samuel Hambley, and "Mrs. McWilliams and the Lightning," read by W. S. Way. The musical part of the programme was quite as entertaining as usual, and all were pleased with the selections and the manner in which they were rendered. Miss Belle Pennington sang a sweet solo, and two beautiful duets were sung by Miss Pennington, Miss Downs, Rev. Mr. Alexander and Dr. W. F. Kennedy. The answers to questions, read by Miss Lilla B. Roberts, were well received and instructive. The following programme was announced for the next regular meeting, Monday evening, May 24th: Reading, by Mary L. Cox; Exercise, by Wallace Bruce; Reading, by Miss Belle Pennington; Reading, by William N. Way; Questions, together with music and answers to questions.

CHIPS.

"It's a useless waste of money to go to Europe for pleasure," says a level-headed exchange. Yes, that's so; as we have always contended. And, besides, it's a miserably long, sloppy walk for an editor.

Since strikers are fashionable, tramps have resolved to strike for warm dinners. They say they can't afford to travel about the country any longer and wear out their clothes for cold shoulder and before-yesterday's bakers-bread.
A Camden girl has married a Mr. Hugged. The courtship was just as easy as nothing, and the business was settled in a moment. One delicious evening as they sat together in the parlor, he said: "My dear, will you be Hugged?" and she was Hugged.

Now the happy, gladsome season is here, when the tired man delights to lay aside the cares of business for the day and wind his way to his bright, peaceful and quiet home, there to have his wife show him a spade and send him into the garden for a little recreation.

A paper down in Texas copies every blessed thing we publish about typhus fever in New York, small-pox in Philadelphia, and the plague at Bagdad. If that's the best reading that Texas man can find in our paper we want to quit and hire out for an obituary architect or a grave yard poet.

A medical journal says: "Diphtheria caught by kissing is likely to assume a much severer form than if the disease were contracted in any other way." That must have been what ailed the hired girl that a friend of ours kissed, when his wife was accidentally looking through a crack in the door. He didn't know it was diphtheria at the time, as the greatest trouble seemed to be in his head, and the doctor was always reticent about the complaint, but he was laid up for a good long time.

"I have no more of your lip!" is the discarded lover remarked to his sweetheart.—Yonkers Statesman.
It is easier for some men to be polite to a big man than it is to be civil to one smaller than themselves.—Whitehall Times.

The wealthy man walks out to get an appetite for his breakfast, and the tramp to get a breakfast for his appetite, and thus the world rolls on.—Idaho.

Will Hayes has written a new song, entitled, "Kiss the Baby Once for Me." After you have finished, Will, spank him two or three times for the rest of the folks.—Burlington Herald.

The difference between a house and a boy is, that the former may be kept warm with shingles at the top, while the latter is warmed by shingles altogether differently.—Whitell's Fables.

The inhabitants of the Canibal Islands have discovered trichina in an American missionary. This is a sad blow at one of the country's leading exports.—Philadelphia Chronicle-Herald.

A western exchange says that the Bronze magazine is up and running. All right, Mr. Man. If you don't want your motives impugned, you mustn't leave them out where we can get at them.—Hill Nye.

Philadelphia is a place where the circus goes to stay during the winter, after the tenting season is over. The animals of the different menageries enjoy the quiet of the town.—New Orleans Picayune.

It has been stated that the late George Eliot would never sit for her photograph, and if her picture in Harper's looks anything like her we don't think she was to be blamed.—Cincinnati Saturday Night.

A man was found dead near Lapeer, Mich., with a whisky bottle in his pocket. It is said that he was an editor; but that is impossible. The idea is ridiculous. The bottle was half full of whisky.—Norristown Herald.

A lady in Kansas City has received a legacy of $180,000 from an uncle she had forgotten. It is not at all likely that any of the rest of us have forgotten relatives lying around waiting to die for our benefit.—Modern Argosy.

Walt Whitman lectured in Boston a few evenings ago, and he has since announced that he will read his poems there, but not until next fall. This will give even the lame plenty of time to get out of town.—Norristown Herald.

RUBBING THE MIDNIGHT OIL.—In the Philadelphia Times of recent date, we notice an item referring to the miraculously quick cure of a prominent druggist of that city, Mr. J. M. Higgins, Germantown Road and Morris street, who had an awful attack of rheumatism of the knee. He applied St. Jacobs Oil at night, and next morning was well in his store as usual.—*Troy, (N. Y.)
